Build a "Cherish Water Campus"

Po Leung Kuk Women's Welfare Club Western District Fung Lee Pui Yiu Primary School (PLKFLPY) won a great many "Cherish Water Campus" awards for the 2015/16 school year (See Table). The secret of success, as revealed by PLKFLPY Principal, Ms. Chiong Mei Chun, is the whole-hearted involvement and concerted effort of everyone at school.

To meet the challenges brought about by global climate change, Ms. Chiong considers a pragmatic approach involving concerted actions should be taken. "The most effective way to establish a positive environmental attitude is through early childhood education. That is why our school joined 'Cherish Water Campus' Integrated Education Programme. We hope to raise students' awareness of water conservation."

However, it would never be easy to create a water saving atmosphere around the whole school. "Generally, environmental protection is just a curriculum topic covered in the General Studies subject. In order that the water saving message can penetrate different subjects, we have organised many cross-subject activities such as Poster Design Competition and Short Video Competition, which were held through joint effort of the visual arts, computer literacy, as well as class teachers. Fortunately, we have a devoted teaching team sharing the same vision for water conservation, willingly dedicating extra time and effort to organise activities and successfully nurturing a keen water saving atmosphere within the school campus. All teachers, janitors, and students actively participate in conserving water and show their cherishment of water resources." Teachers' effort and dedication has paid off as Ms. Chiong has observed that students have been increasingly concerned about water conservation. "Many parents have reflected that their children also discipline themselves at home to use less water. For example they take their shower for less than 5 minutes, and proactively remind their family members not to turn on the tap for too long."

Students in the process of performing water audits, measuring water consumption and making water saving suggestions

Ms. Wong Wing Yan, the teacher in charge of the environmental group, pointed out that IEP activities enriched not only students' knowledge on water resources but also their cooperation skills. "Last year, we organised a short video competition. Students were divided into groups, and each group produced a water conservation video. From research conducting, acting, shooting to video-editing, students performed different video production tasks entirely all by themselves." Ms. Wong also said that besides acquiring new knowledge, students were able to make water saving proposals. "After participating in the School Water Audit, students suggested installing flow controllers onto all water taps. Accordingly, flow controller installation works were carried out in the past summer break. By comparing the water bills before and after the installation, it was found that there had been a significant reduction in water consumption, thanks to all the hard work of the whole school."

School and individual awards to encourage participation

IEP features a wide range of activities for schools. A certain amount of "water drops" will be bestowed on each activity completed. WSD will present awards to schools based on their performance and the total number of "water drops" they receive. Other than the activities under the IEP, schools can also earn "water drops" through participation in water conservation - related activities held by other organisations. For details of the IEP, please visit: <http://www.wsd.gov.hk/iep>

Sharing of any new water saving activities from schools would be welcome. Please send the relevant information to waterconservation@wsd.gov.hk

Just a while ago, our Star Principal and I participated in a number of water conservation activities! Stay tuned and check out my Facebook Page!

Fun sharing

Hose irrigation is not an effective irrigation method, as it is easily leading to wastage with water getting splashed everywhere during the irrigation process and dripping out of the hose after the irrigation water supply is shut off.
